Community in Action

Aiben displayed Community in Action by actively participating in the learning process, showing enthusiasm and a positive attitude towards education.

Aiben has been commended by Kristy Nice for embodying "Community in Action". This acknowledgment celebrates their positive impact and dedication to our school's values of excellence, hope, dignity, community, and service.

We encourage you to have a conversation with Aiben and celebrate this achievement.

"Wow!!! How wonderful! We are seeing such a beautiful change in James, he is really starting to mature. It is so lovely, and such a very welcome change, to receive positive communication about James. Thank you! We will absolutely make a huge deal to celebrate him."

A word cloud of positive words in blue on a white background. The words are arranged in a scattered pattern, with some larger than others. The background features a colorful geometric border with shades of blue, yellow, and orange.

Welcome to your Week 7 Data Wrap Up!

 Girls appear to be much less involved in behavioural incidents than  boys. With only 25 referrals for girls versus a staggering 71 referrals for boys, what might be driving this disparity?

 Girls have received 42 awards for displaying the school's core values, compared to just 24 awards for  boys. This difference raises an intriguing question: Why are girls being recognized almost twice as much as boys?

 Dunlea/Blue House stands out with only 15 incidents—significantly fewer than the other Houses. What's happening in Dunlea that's keeping behavior issues lower? Could it be the leadership, a different House culture, or perhaps fewer students? This could be a model House in terms of behavior, providing lessons for the others.

 With 56.8% of students facing behavioural challenges versus  43.2% being recognized for
